

2022

NEW YORK
ENCOUNTER X

Nature Is a Spectacle that Is Never Exhausted

From curiosity to the beauty of discovery, a journey to regain trust in science.

FRIDAY–SUNDAY
FEB 18–20, 2022

METROPOLITAN PAVILION
125 W. 18th St., NYC

EXHIBIT PRESENTATION
FRI, FEB 18, 2022
7:45 PM ET | FLOOR 2
WITH MARK PAINTER, EXHIBIT CURATOR

During the pandemic, our collective urge for the truth has intensified. While many of us turned to science for answers, we were sometimes left disappointed or confused by the ever-changing information. Why should we trust a process that keeps proving itself wrong? Does science actually show us the truth? And why do we do it?

Integrating stories from the history of scientific discovery with data capturing the experience of contemporary scientists from around the globe, we set out to uncover what science is all about. From how it starts to where it goes and what we might gain along the way, come explore the puzzling, enlightening, and beautiful unfolding of the scientific journey.

*Sponsored by a grant from the Templeton Religion Trust
(#TRT0296. Brandon Vaidyanathan, PI)*

IN-PERSON ONLY

EXHIBIT

“This Urge for the Truth”

FEBRUARY
18–20, 2022

www.newyorkencounter.org/2022-nature-is-a-spectacle-that-is-never-exhausted